

By Monty Siekerman

PART 2 Bi explores Ada

bear fixation

Polar Today, Bi the polar bear explores Ada. This the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series describing Bi, the visiting polar bear for the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part series described by the second installment of a four-part seri Today, Bi the polar bear explores Ada. This is describing Bi, the visiting polar bear from the Arctic, and his travels in Ada to find his friend, Klondike, the ONU mascot.

> Yesterday featured photos of Klondike, a little history about him, and how he is helpful in Ada/ONU, but can be down right scary at sports events.

Cute little Bi can be seen entering the village, checking out a dog park under construction, stopping at COSI for a warm coffee, and chowing down on a Klondike Bar, among other locales.

Tomorrow—Bi finds there are many polar bear places all over campus, in and outside buildings. The final installment—Polar Bear heaven... King-Horn and the Sports Center, lots of polar bears there.

Wow, a cannon. Are these a militaristic people?

Bi reaches the village limits.

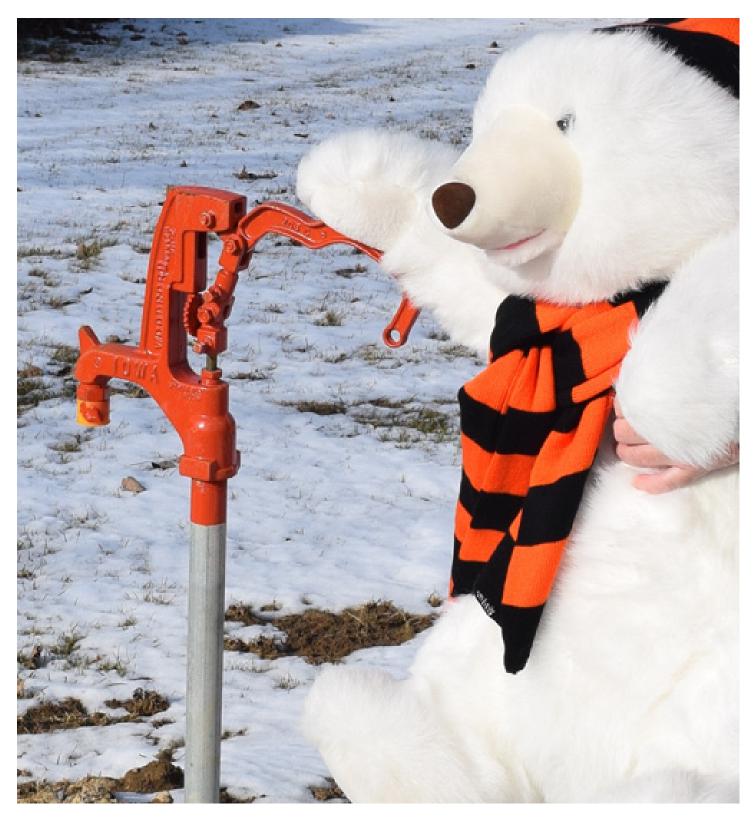

Bi gets a big welcome.

Bi sees his family at COSI.

Wow. They'll have a dog park. Will they have one for polar bears, too?

Even water for the dogs. I think I'm thirsty.

I think I'll take the train home. Does it go North?